John Bell.

The third-party Convention at Balti has nominated John Bell for the Presidency. The candidate is vastly better than the Convention which nominated him. We remark this because investigations have revealed so much corruption in the last movement of this kind that the connection of some of the meanest of the leaders of that with this, attaches a suspicious odor to it.

John Bell is a statesman without reproach If the Republicans really want what they profess to-a conservative candidate-and are not afraid to take a statesman of character and experience, John Bell is unexceptionable for the Chicago nomination. His position on slavery is probably about the same that the Republicans will take at Chicago, or at any rate quite as far as they will venture to go in hostility to slavery. Should Mr. Douglas be nominated it is probable that a considerable number of Southern Democrats will discover but little to choose between the two; and if the election should go into the House, and Mr. Bell should be one of the eligibles there, his chances would be at least as good as those of any other candidate.

Although the third-party movement has hitherto been remarkably prolific in the platform way, so much so as to attach the term "spread-eagle" to their literature, this Convention changed its tactics, and resolved to have no platform.

"Timeo Danaos Et Dona Perentes."

In South Carolina, if a person questions the divine right of Slavery, summary means are applied to convince him of the error of his ways; not so much that the Carolinians have not all the advantages in the argument, and cannot boldly challenge discussion as that, as we all know, there are certain things too sacred to be regarded as open to discussion and scepticism, and in South Carolina Slavery is one of these.

But as we know by numerous instances in sacred and classical literature, the sterness resistance is often overcome by apparent concessions, and firmness which no intimidation nor persecution could shake, is broken by fatal gifts. The very air of South Carolina i profaned by any discussion of Slavery; but under the specious guise of a compliment in selecting that State for the place of the Democratic National Convention, several hundred turbulent politicians penetrated into the very bowels of the State, and there agitated the whole Union for weeks, with their wranglings on slavery. Men who at home had colemnly made it an article of Democratic faith-a thing, the unchangability of which makes the laws of the Medes and Persians seem quite ephemeral-that it was the Democratic duty to mitigate and eradicate the slavery evil, were permitted under this guise to enter the very sanctuary of slavery and there refuse to concede to it the right of legal protection in the Territories, and to proclaim mething more fatal to slavery than even the glittering generality of Mansfield-that slaves can not breathe in the Territories; that the moment they come in contact with an abolitionist majority, their shackles fall, While South Carolina has been expending her energies on some stray mechanic from the North who had ventured to express the North who had ventured to express doubts whether slavery was beneficial to the white laboring man, or on some clock peddlar whose wares indicated an origin where principles were unsound, a Pandora's box of slavery agitators has been opened in her midst, and their dissensions have been pervery citadel of slavery.

The Trojans, after resisting a ten-years siege, admitted a band of armed Greeks into their city in the bowels of a pretended gift; so South Carolina has admitted a National Democratic Convention into her citadel, whose intestine disturbances disclosed a band of unmitigated slavery-agitators; and now Charleston holds that position as the center of slavery agitation, which Kansas recently occupied. South Carolina may well reflect upon the hard fate of Troy and upon the striking parallel between Grecian and Dem-

The question whether a certain resolution offered in the Charleston Convention by delegates from Tennessee, in respect to the rights of the legislative power to act upon questions of property, actually passed that body or not, is one in which a good deal of interest appears to be invested. Taking for authority the telegraphic report of the proceedings, we felt no hesitation in stating, in an article published on Friday last, that the resolution had been adopted. The report is confused, it is true, and inartistic, but it is not contradictory; and it would be difficult to frame any theory to account for what it contains, except the excitement consequent on the late fight seems to increase rather than subside in Liverpool. Certain delegates affirm that they were not aware of its adoption, which, considering the excitement and confusion that prevailed at the time, is very possible, and perfectly consistent with a formal going-through, on the part of the Chair and the House, of all the motions necessary to its passage. This is all that the showing of the Philadelphia Press amounts to—hardly enough, it would seem, to invalio-hardly enough, it would seem, to invalidate the apparently positive evidence of the

The Enormous Defalcation to the Union LATEST BY TELEGRAPH. Bank of London The Cashler Amounts to $1,300,000.

Our Wednesday's New York exchanges may there was considerable talk in the street, on Tuesday, about the enormous defalcation which has just come to light in the Union Bank in London. It seems that the Cashier of that institution, Mr. William G. Pullinger, has contrived, in the course of the past five years, to rob the Bank of no less than $1,300,000, the whole of which he appears to have lost in stock speculations. He effected the robbery by a very simple process. The Union Bank kept their account with the Bank of England, and the deposits, payments and balances were regulated, as usual, by a passbook. Pullinger had two passbooks—one, the real book, which was sent every day to the Bank of England, the other, a false one, which was shown to the accountant of the Union Bank.

nion Bank.
At the time the defalcation was discovered At the time the defalcation was discovered the balance standing to the credit of the Union Bank according to the filse book was £559,706, while the real book only showed a balance of £306,639—the difference being the amount appropriated by the fraudulent cashier. Of course no such barefaced fraud could have taken place had the president and directors of the bank been watchful of Pullinger's proceedings. It is, in fact, wonderful that during a period of five years the Union Bank never happened to require the whole of the balance which, according to its general ledger, it had in the Bank of England. Had the directors ever drawn a check for their Bank of England balance, as it appeared in their own books, the defalcation would stonce have been discovered; their not having done so during so long a period, would seem to imply that Pullinger was the real manager of the bank, and that no one understood is condition but himself. It is only too likely that other banks, not in England, are in the same position, and that the only men who understand their true state are subordinate officials, of whose habits and circumstances president and directors were of the stock speculation of Pullinger. ulation of Pullinger.

The Wanderer Case Once More Particulars of the Resear of Captain Farnum.

On Tuesday afternoon, about dusk, our county jail was visited by some four or five persons, who effected the rescue of Captain Farnum, arrested in New York, and brought to this State for trial on a charge of complicity with the slave trade in the Wanderer case, Captain Farnum, it arresees has been allowed. Captain Farmun, it appears, has been allowed every privilege at the jail consistent with a liberal construction of duty; his confinement liberal construction of duty; his confinement being almost anominal thing. Arrangements were made between him and the rescuers that Captain Farnum should give up his parole under which he had been allowed such freedom, from restraint, when the former were to rush in, bind the jailor, and release the prisoner. This was carried into effect, an opportune moment being selected, when Mr. Stone, the jailor, was out on parade, and Peter Luddy, his deputy, in charge. Captain Farnum requested Luddy to lock him in his cell, which was done, and Luddy had returned to the hall leading through the jail, in his cell, which was done, and Luddy had returned to the hall leading through the jail, when he was met and held by the rescuers his keys taken from him, the pirsoner released and conducted to a carriage in waiting, and driven off to the Pulaski House, where he was surrounded by his friends, who farther defied the law by protecting him from arrest. The District Attorney heard of it, and endeavored to take the necessary proceedings for re-arrest; he agreed to let the matter rest until yesterday morning. Farnum's friends, in consideration of Mr. Couper's consenting to adopt that course, pledged him their honor that they would produce the man and make application for bail, the ensuing morning; such application not having been made at two o'clock, Mr. Couper notified Mr. Farnum and his friends that he should now require that Mr. Farnum should surrender himself into the custody of the jailor before he would consent to notice any application, after that here for hell on his ner and that if they reconsent to notice any application, after that hour, for ball on his part, and that if they re-fused to adopt that course, he would call upon the proper authorities and require his forcible arrest. Mr. Farnum then surrendered himself into the custody of the jailor of Chatham County. We understand he will make his County. We understand he will application for bail this morning.

Dr. Hibbard hoped the Conference would not omit the opportunity in this day and age, of holding out their hands to their sister churches. The coincidence might not occur again in a life time. He moved to re-commit the report, with instructions to prepare a letter of salutation to both the ENY is acknowledged by the most eminent paysicians, and the the most careful draggist throughout the United States, to be the most effectual blood-purifier ever known, and to have relieved more suffering, and effected more permanent cures, than any preparation known to the profession. again in a life time. He moved to re-committhe report, with instructions to prepare a letter of salutation to both the assemblies of the Presbyterian Church, now about to meet.

Mr. Coombe opposed the motion, on the ground that it would involve a similar course towardall the other churches. Four years ago this Conference expressed its desire for fraternal intercourse with all its sister churches, and not a single reply had been received. He was opposed, therefore, to placing themselves in a position which would subject them to similar treatment and neglect hereafter.

Dr. Curry was in favor of sending a delegate to Rochester, to make his bow and say, "How do you do," and then return, and if the Presbyterians desired to make any reply they would be at liberty to do so.

After some other good natured discussion,
the motion to re-commit was laid on the table and the report was adopted. A communication from the Bishops was laid before the Conference in reference to a revision of the ritual, which was read and placed on file. Headquarvers Third Baldade.

Democrat, arrested a white man at the Howard House, on Tuesday evening about sundown. He had aroused their suspicions by having with him a likely yellow boy, about twenty-four or twenty-five years of age. The fellow gave his name as H. A. Scott, and is a painter by trade. He declared that the negro belonged to him, but upon examination the boy told quite a different story. He said that he belonged to Mr. L. N. Whittle, a lawyer at Macon, Ga., from whom he had run away about December, 1857. Upon the person of the white man was found three daguerreotypes of negroes, one of a black man, another of an elderly negro woman, and a hird of a man and woman of about the middle age. The boy who was with the white man gave his name as John Henry. There can scarcely be any doubt about the fellow's character, or the probability of the boy's story, as it has an air of likelihood about it. RICKEY, MALLORY & CO., NO. 73 WEST FOURTH-STREET,
